Johnny the Walrus
By Matt Walsh
Illustrations by K. Reece

Johnny's
a boy with a big imagination

One day he's a dog
the next day a
crustacean

One morning he came downstairs barking and clapping
home sweet home
is my place
Wood spoons
for tusks
and sock fins
a-flapping

"I'm Johnny
the Walrus!"
he said with a
ROAR
"The wood floor's my ocean the carpet's my shore!"
Johnny's mom
loves her son's
make-believe
time

"You're
Johnny
the Walrus,
'til you
change
your mind!"
live laugh
But Johnny's mom's phone said it's not just pretend

"Only a
bigot
would say that! How dare you
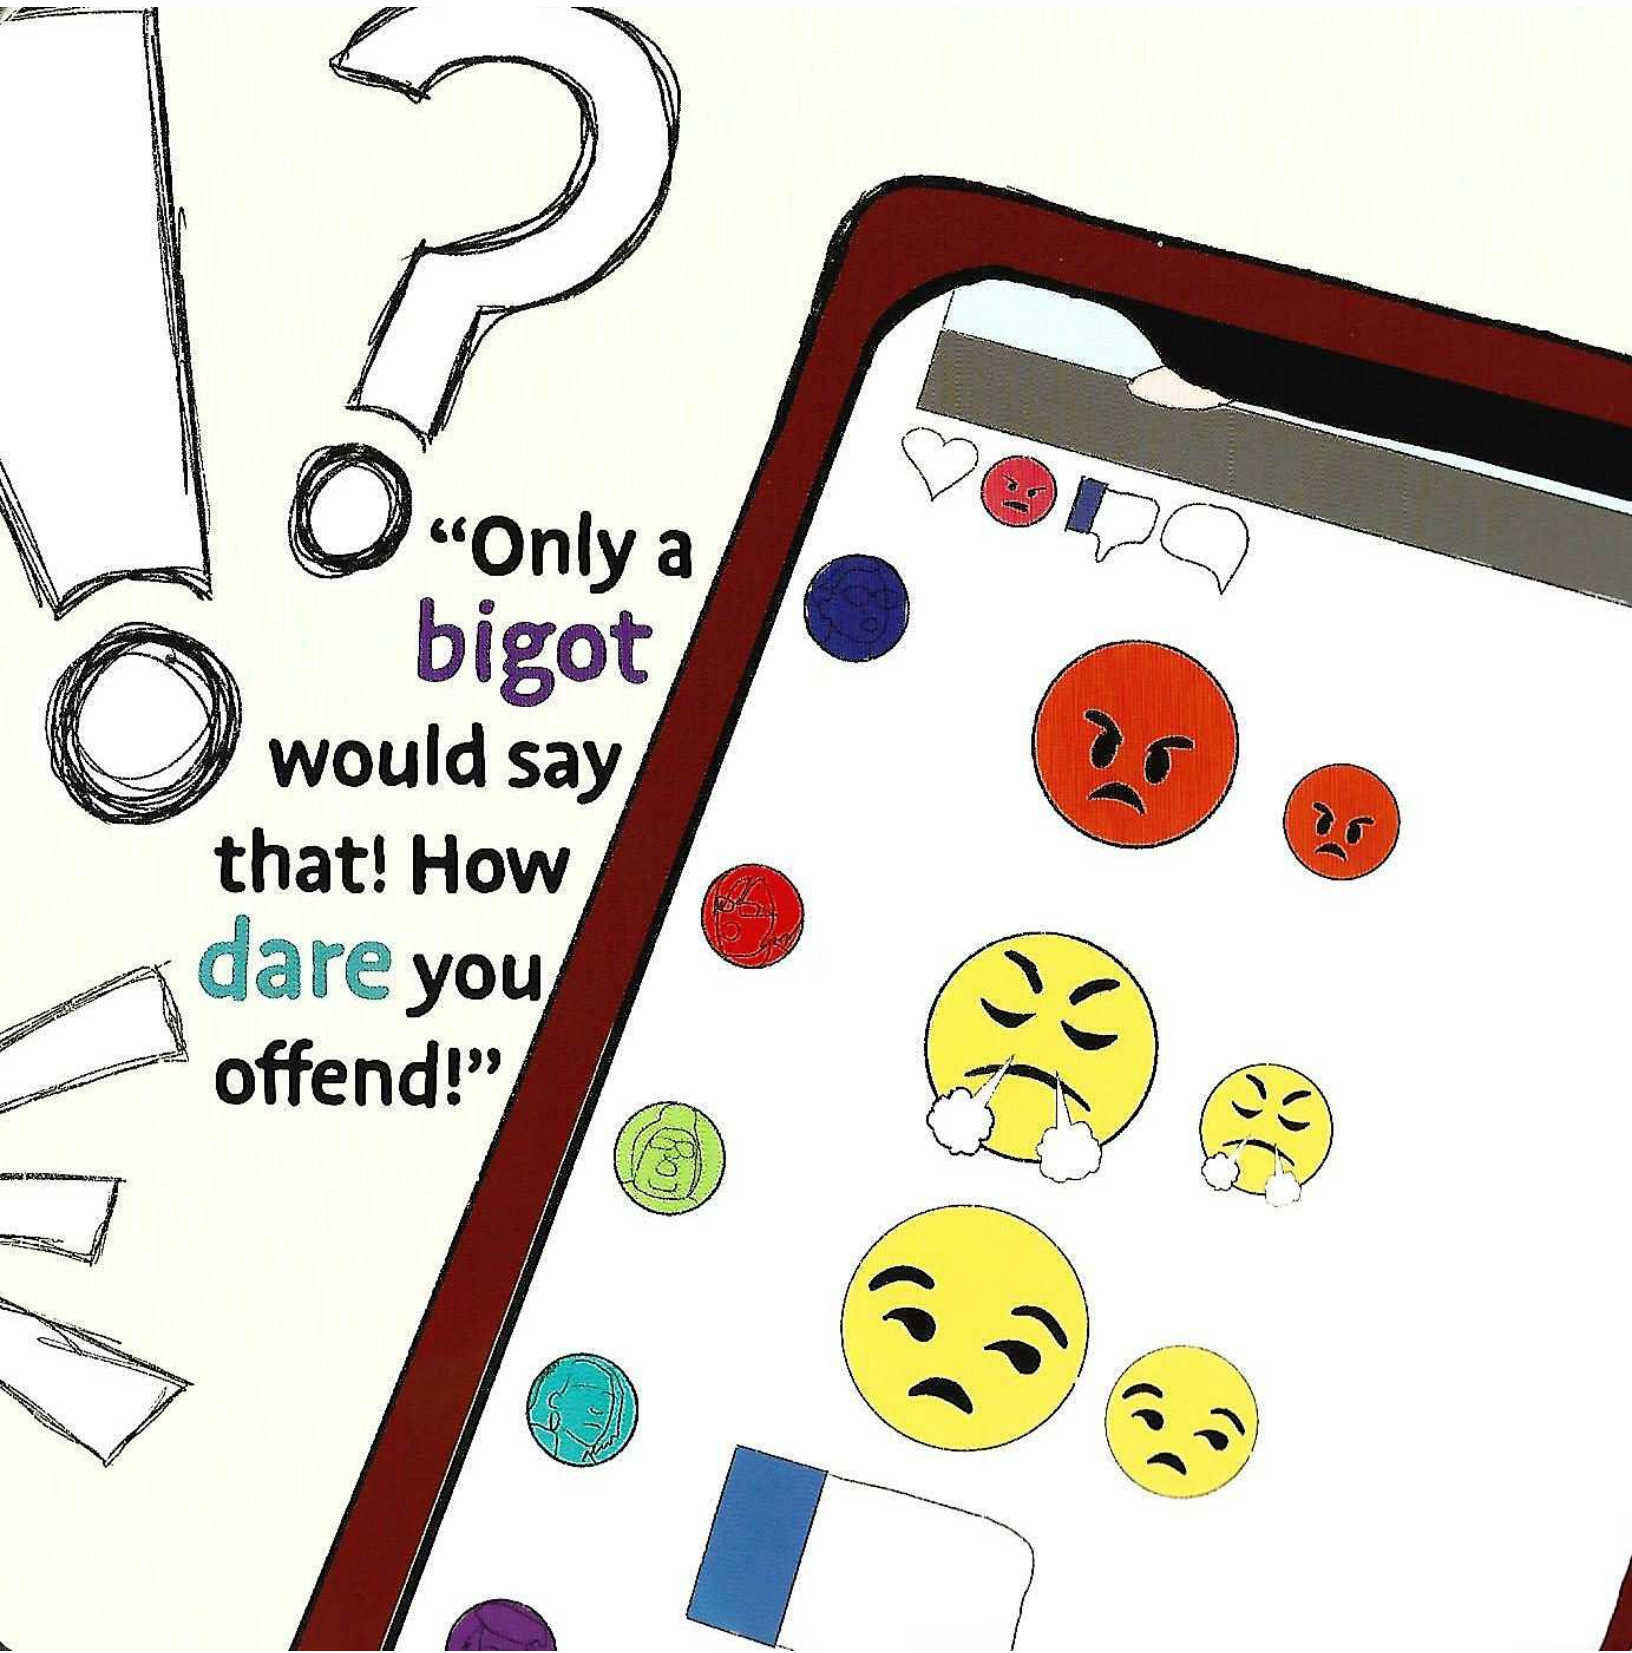
offend!"


Johnny is a REAL WALRUS!
Let Johnny Transition
Human Walruses Are REAL Walruses
STOP
Anti-walrusism
Mommy was told to take John for a checkup

"You'll need to eat worms
and to put on gray
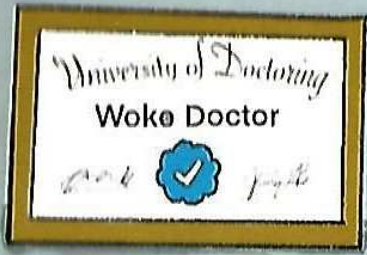
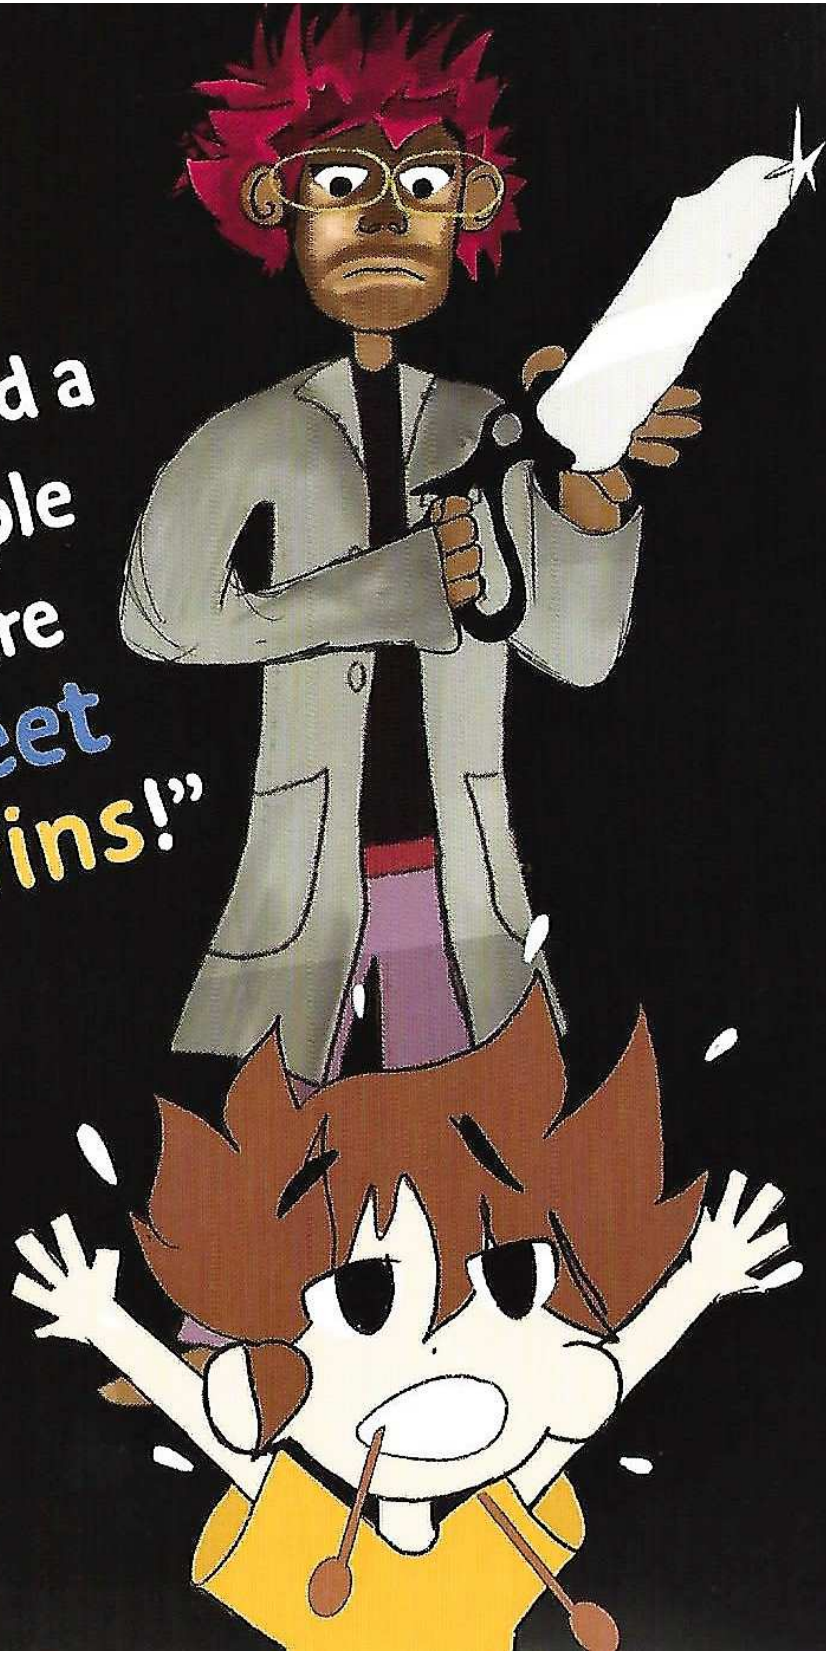
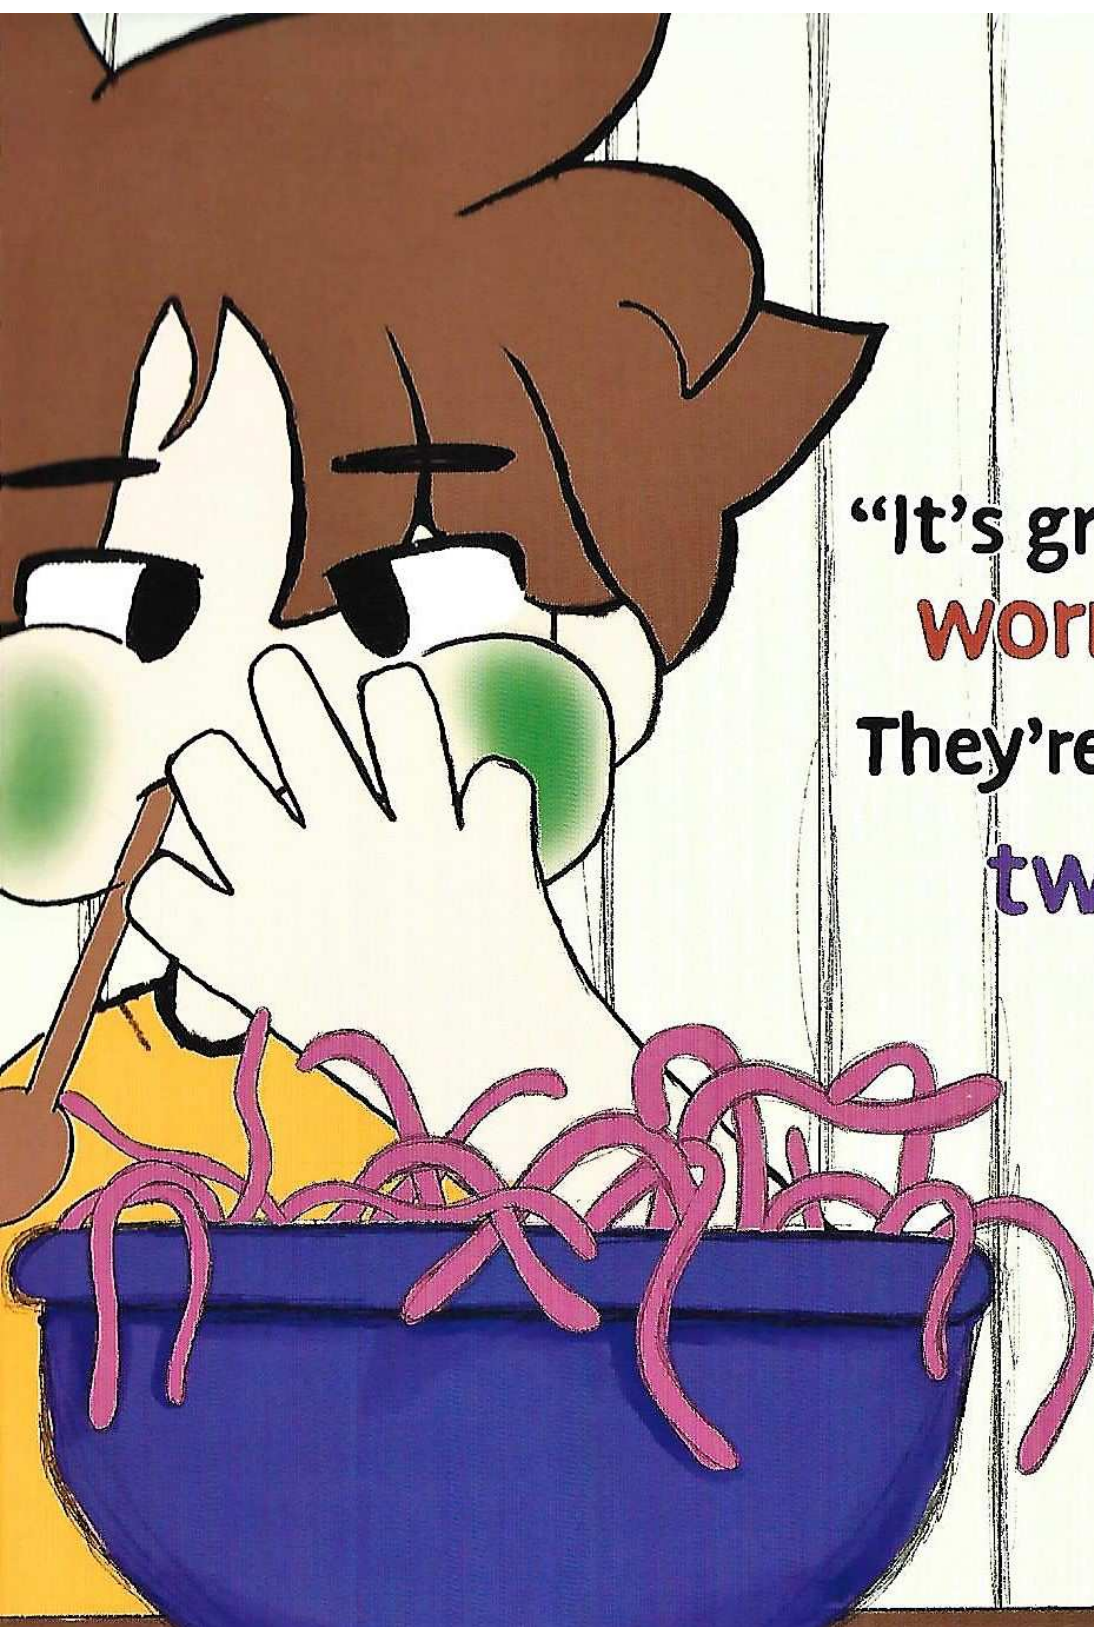
makeup!"


University of Doctoring
Woke Doctor
"The worms
give you
whiskers.
The gray
blends
you in."

"And a
simple
procedure
cuts feet
into fins!"




"It's gross eating
worms, Mom.
They're all so dang
twitchy!"

"Wood spoons kinda hurt, and the makeup is itchy."
Deep down Johnny's mom knew that something was wrong
But she felt so much pressure she just went along
Marine mammals are people too!
He/Him/Walrux
Literally Walrusphobic
The internet people knew just what to do

And mommy was told to take John to the zoo MW

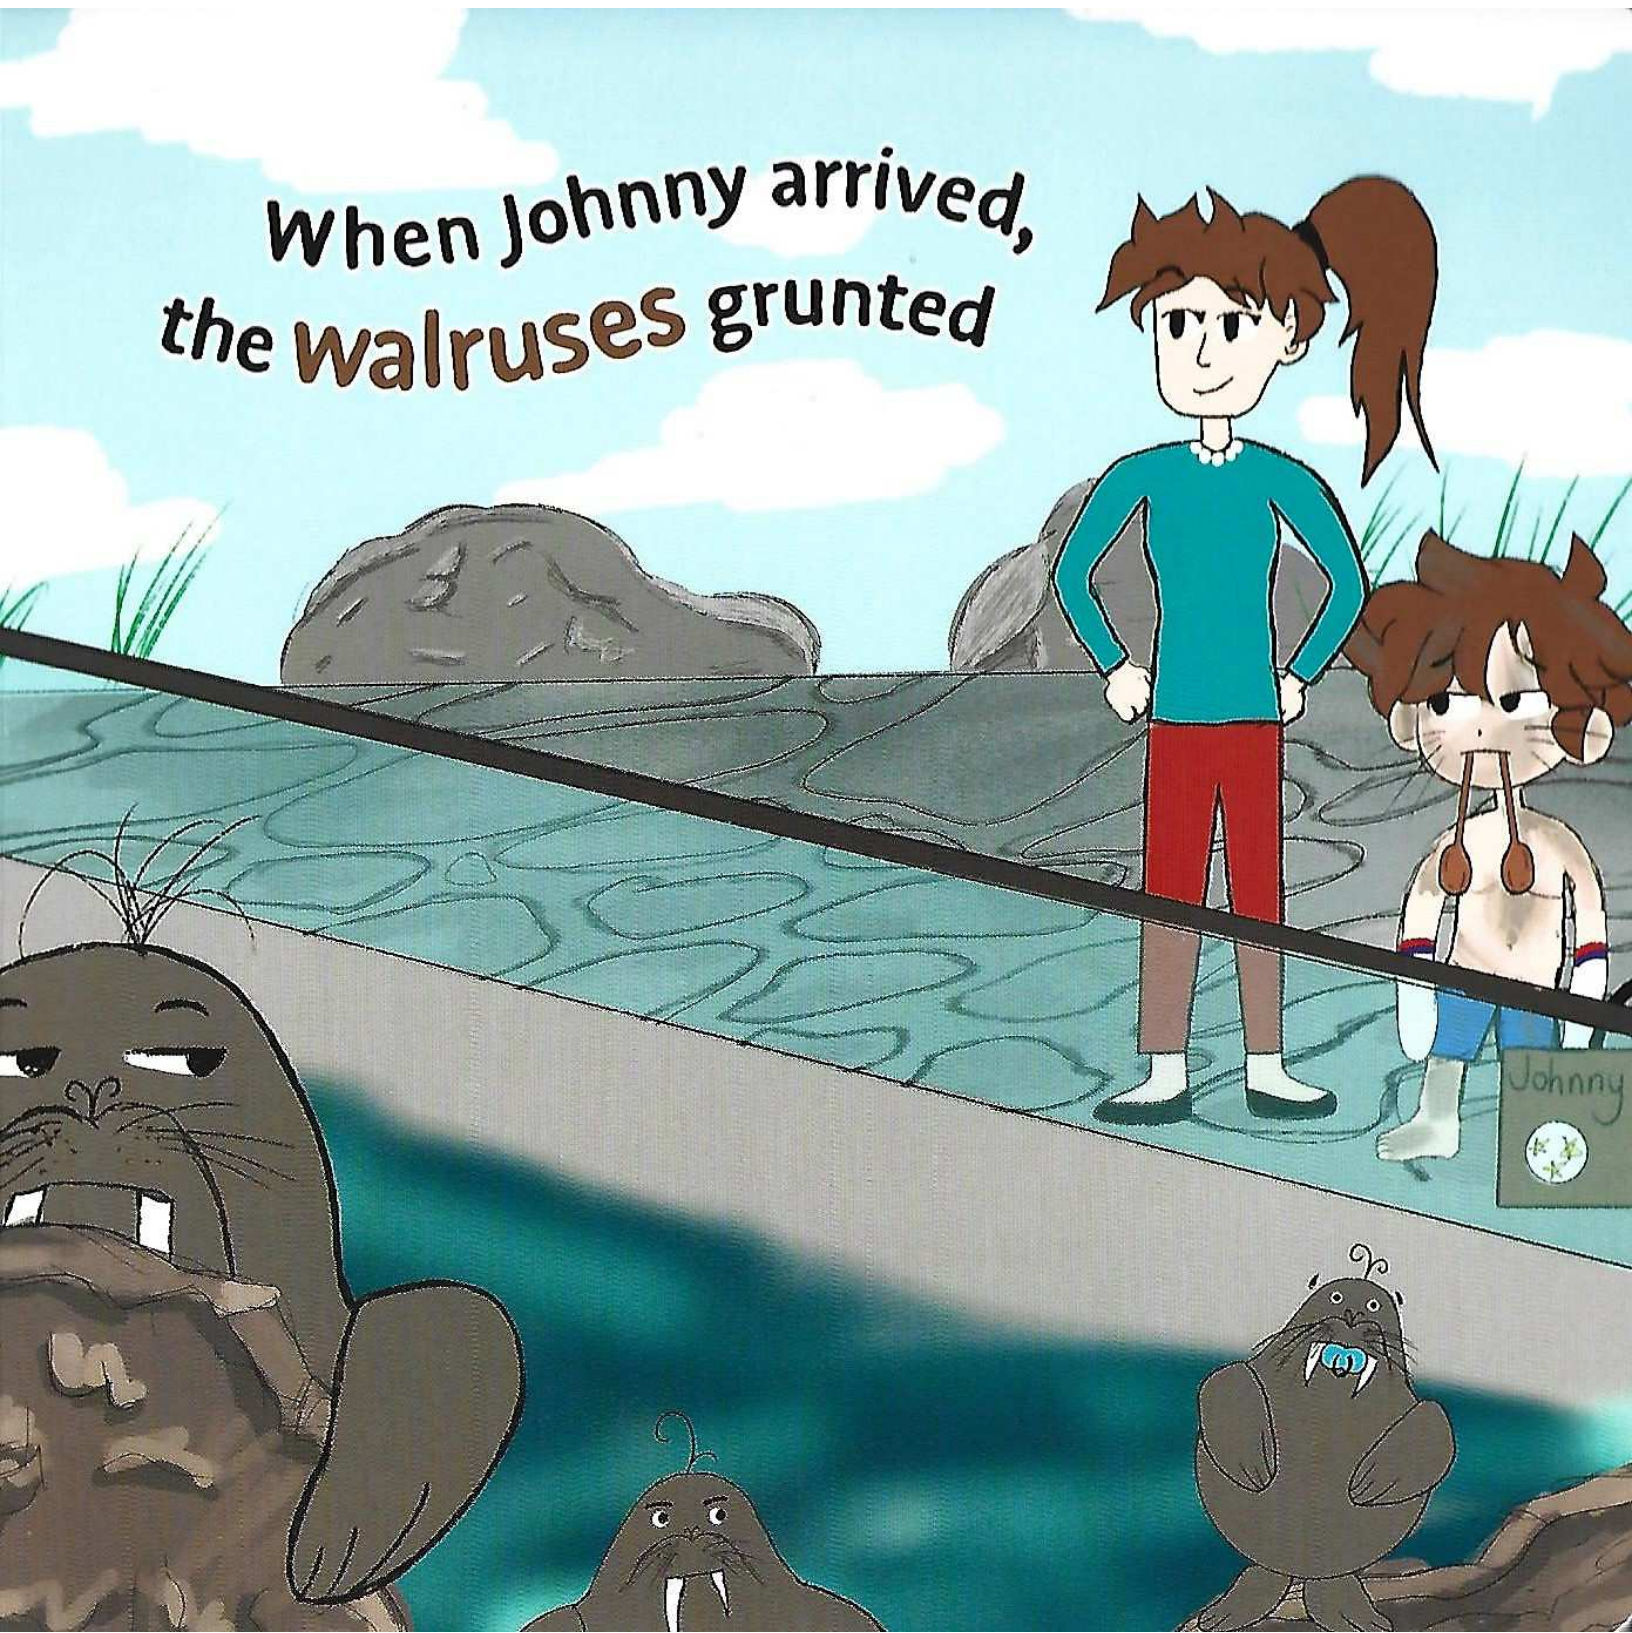
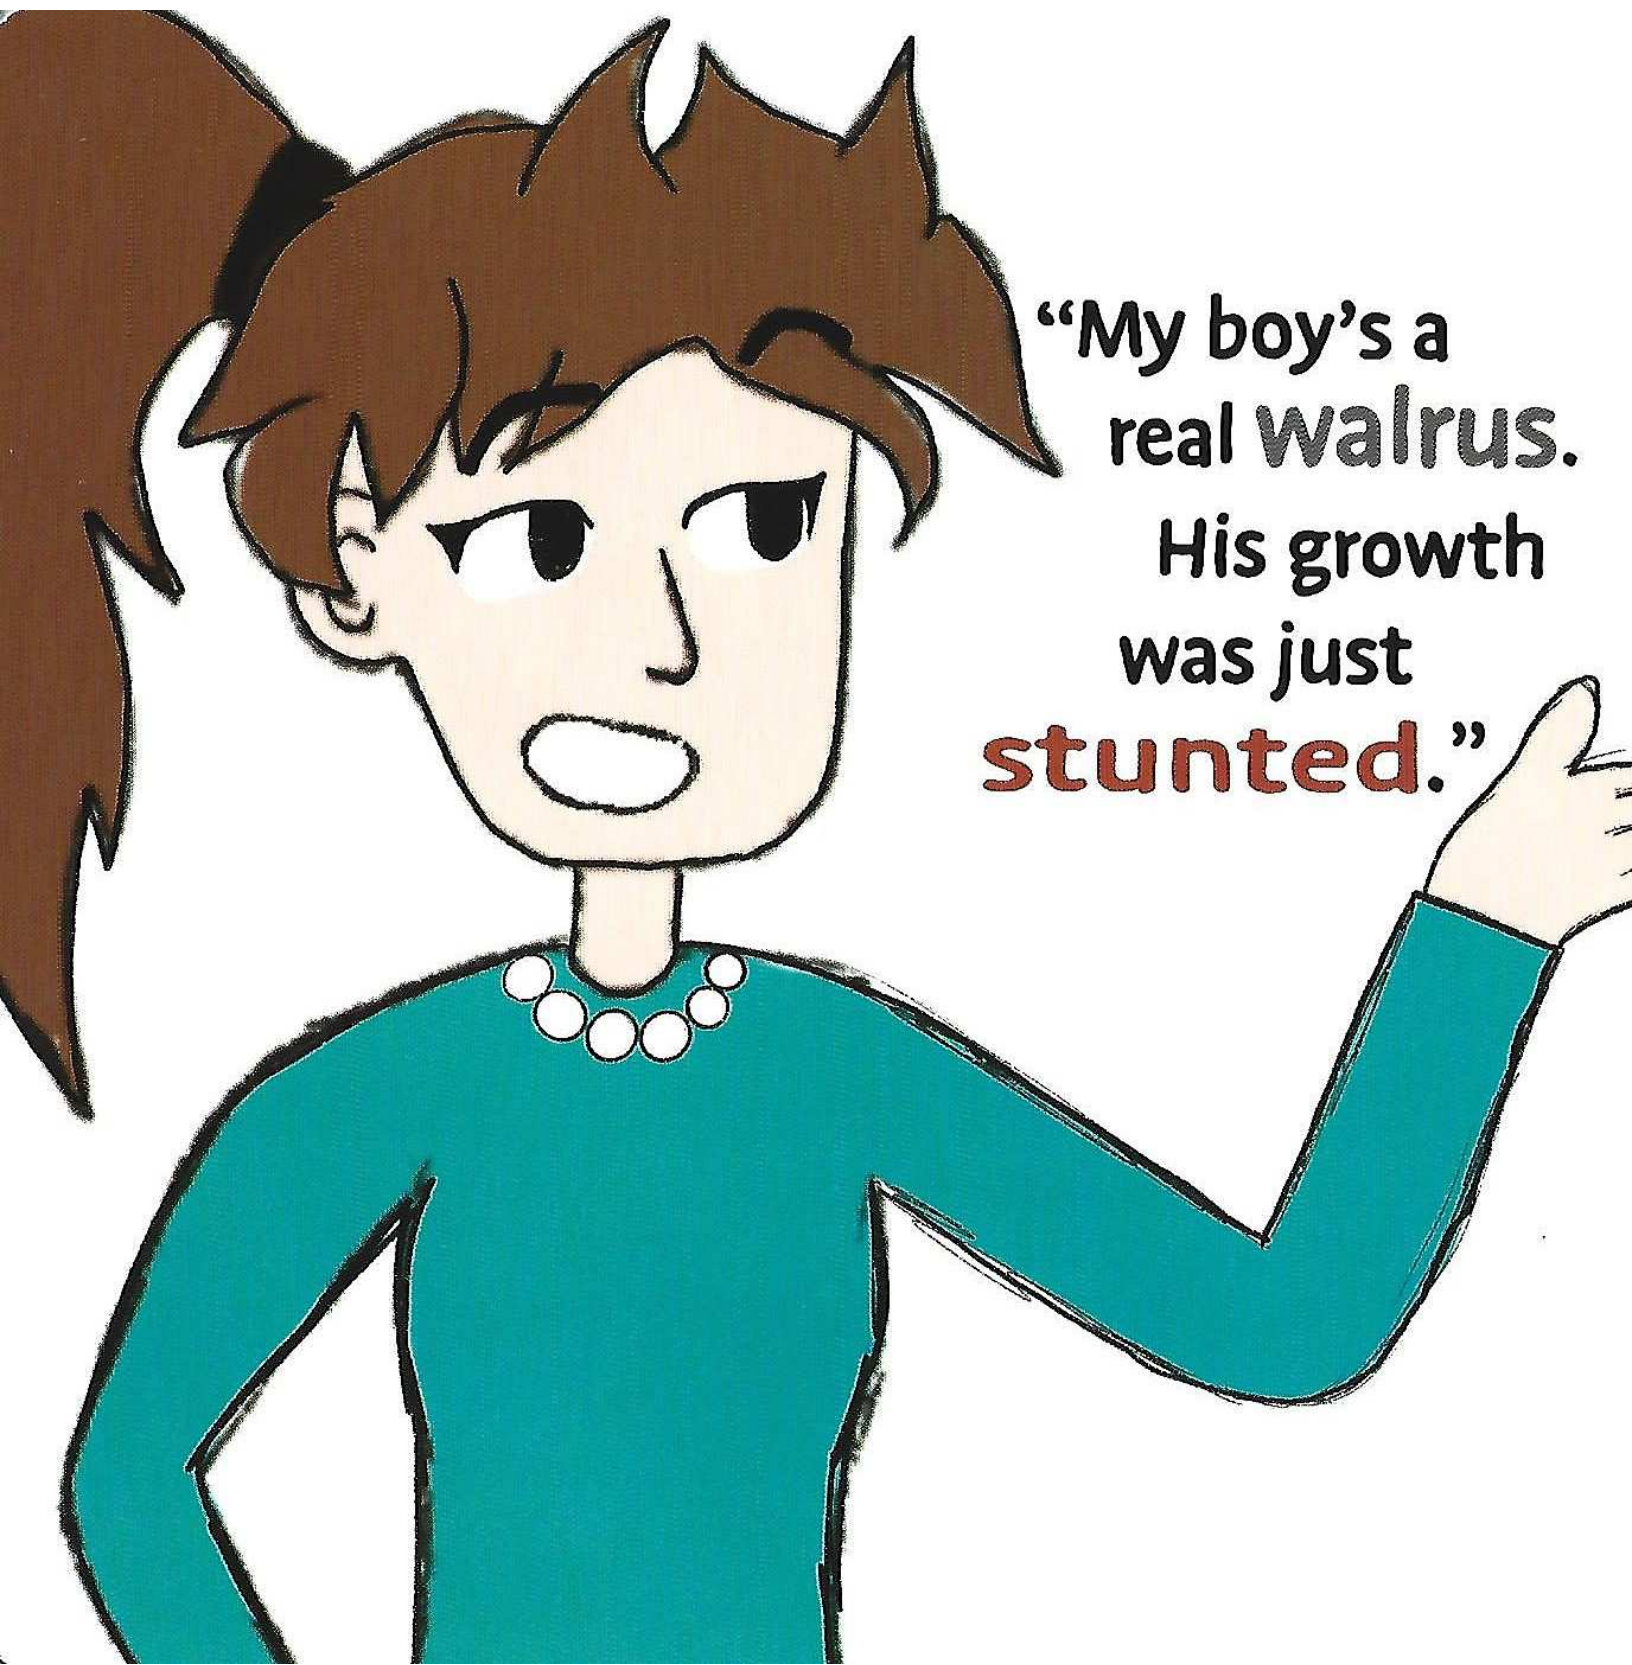
When Johnny arrived,
the walruses grunted
Johnny




"My boy's a real walrus. His growth was just stunted."

The Zookeeper thought, “What’s she talking about?”
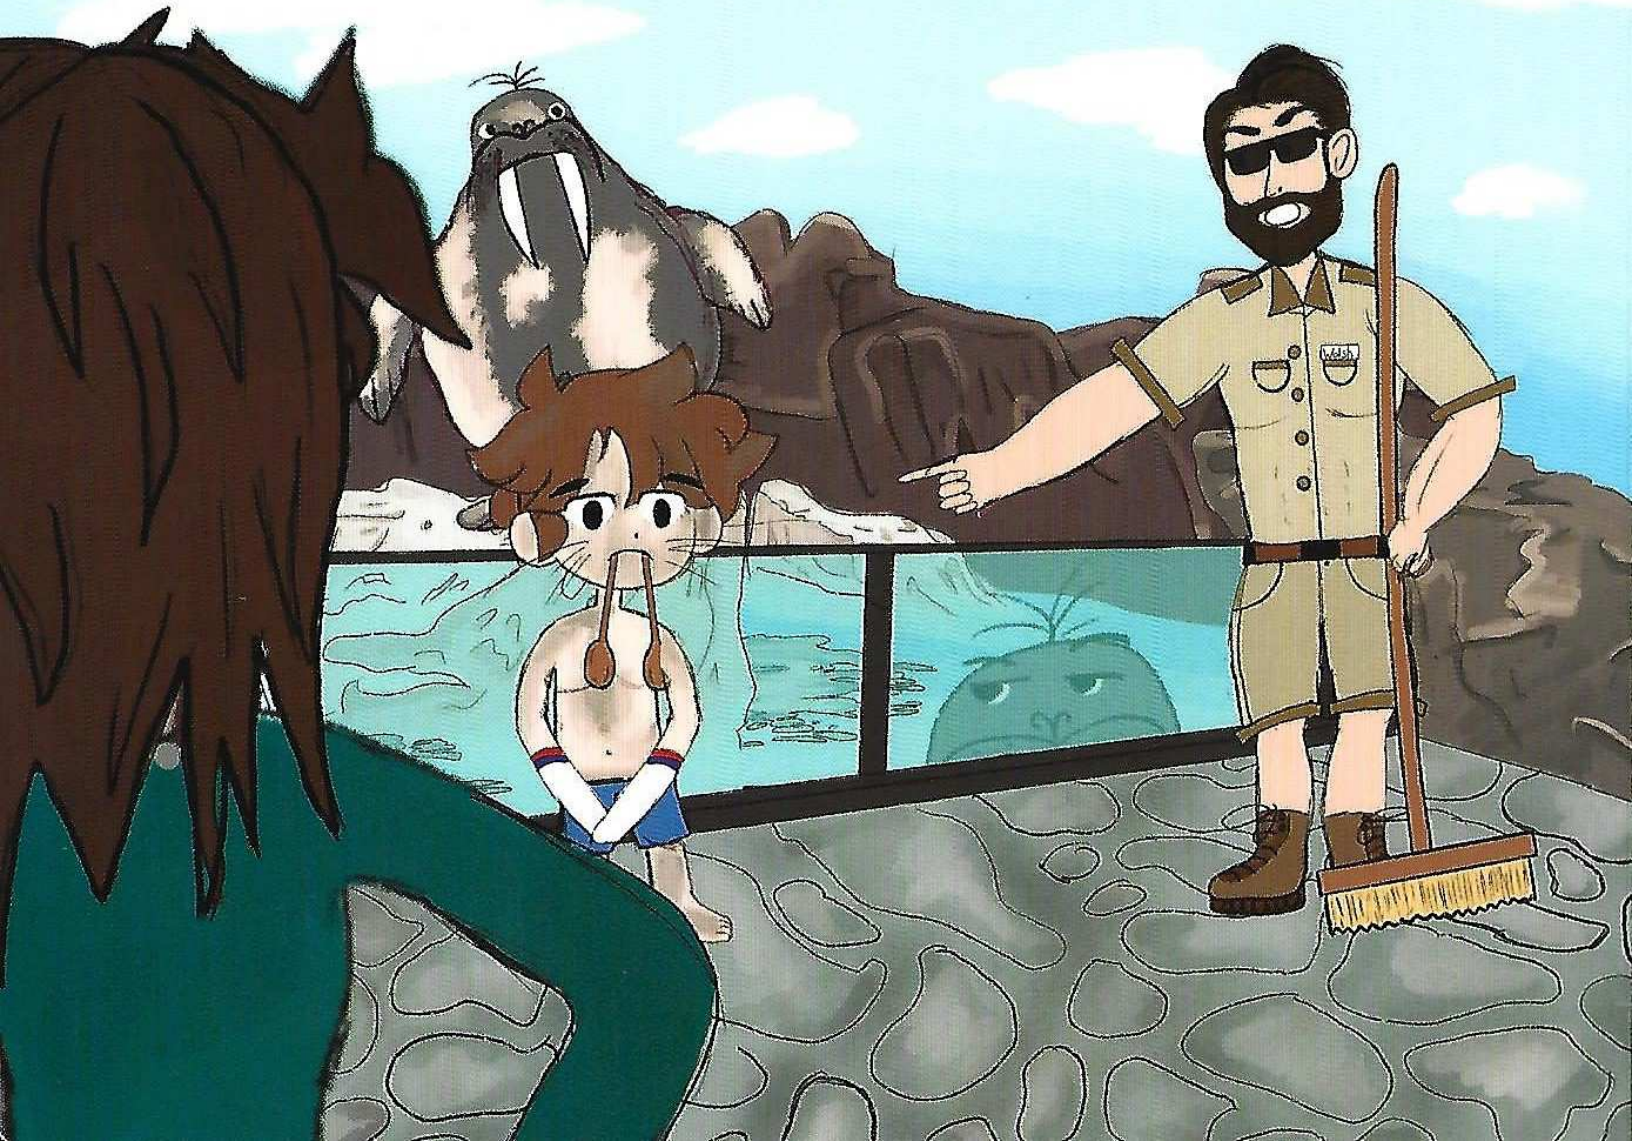
Johnny

"Ma'am, that's just a boy with wood spoons in his mouth!"


"But if I
believe that,
they'll say
that I'm phobic!"

"Protecting your son, ma'am, is what's most heroic."
At last Johnny's mommy was able to see

That Johnny's
not what he's pretending
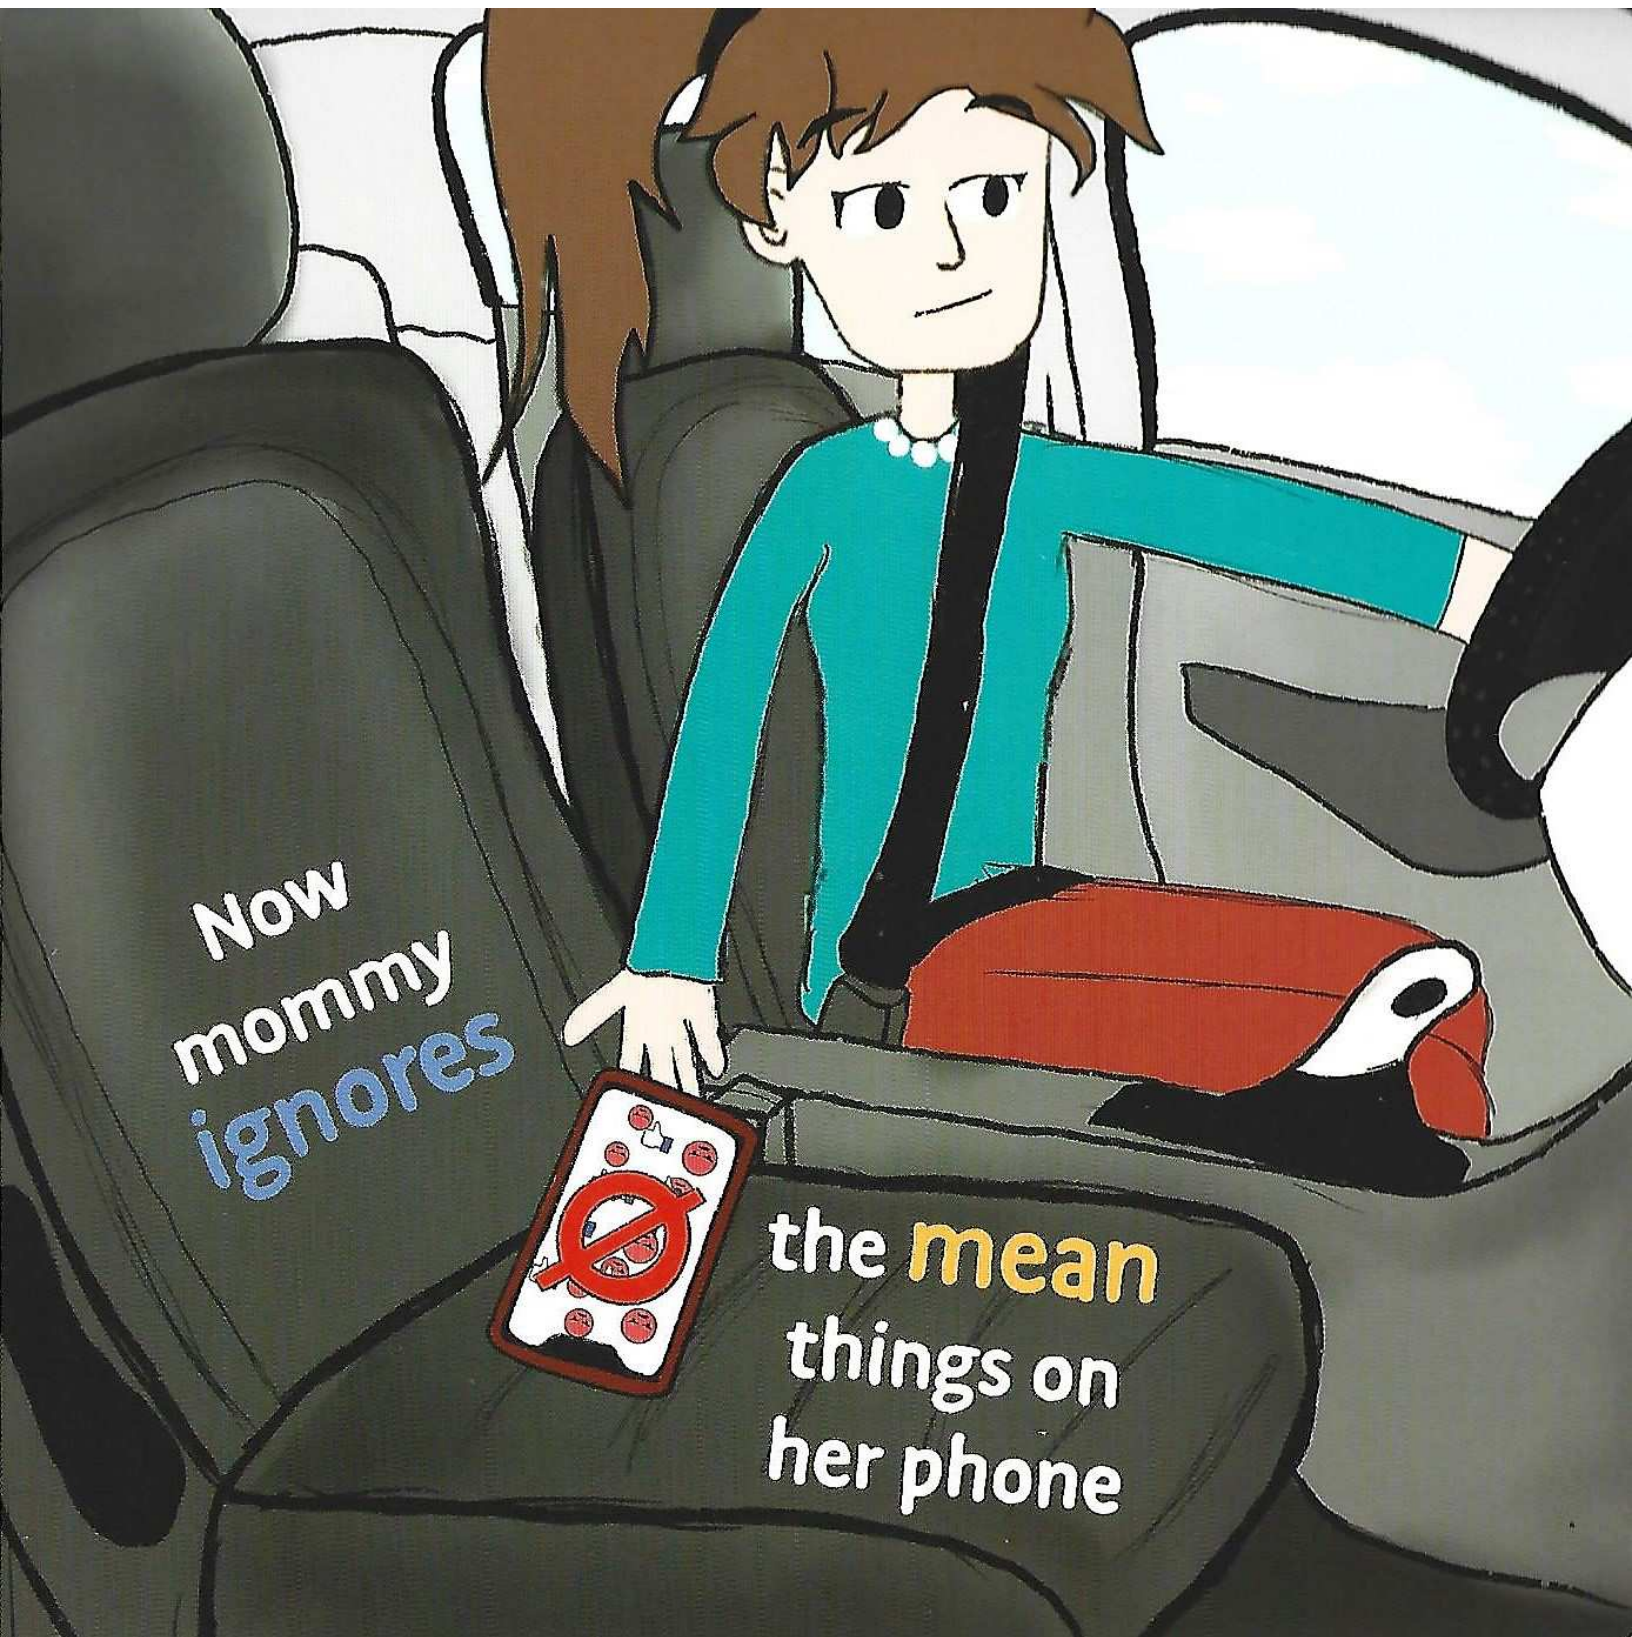
to be


Now
mommy
ignores
the mean
things on her phone

While Johnny
pretends
he's a bird flying home
